Dear Joe,

Just a brief 'un to set you straight about a couple of items in your June July issue.

On the first page and your quotes from Dave Prowse.

He writes about CUTTY SARK WHISKY and after Whisky you have (SIC.)

Prowse was CORRECT in his spelling. When whisky is so spelled, it indicates it is SCOTCH whisky and it is by LAW that it is so spelled. All other whiskey is spelled with an " E " in it. Thus all and sundry know what is scotch and what ain't.

After his word sceptical you again have " SIC " after it.

Again Dave, according to ENGLISH usage, spelled the word correctly. That is the way it is spelled in England.

Funny sods these ENGLISH; they WILL spell labor LABOUR and HONOR honour.

They also have a curious habit of pronouncing SCHEDULE SCHEDULE and not with a hard SCHEDULE as you and I do. Strange.

Also in the Al Thoms but refers to " this wonderful PANTHEON. You have got it PANTHOEN. Hmmm. (or should I have said " SIC " ?)

Hope you enjoyed your power lifting visit. Did the Reverend attend? Jan? ditto. No word from him as yet. But it is early.

best,

Chas
